Warrenton's First Night

“Sally's family was her first loves, but foxhunting and conservation tied for a close second,” said Will Allers, who was Warrenton Hunt joint-master with Tufts in 1980-90. “She devoted her life to it, and it was all for the hunting. The Carey was a way to conserve and preserve open land for future generations. She knew this was important, especially in this area.”

True to his character, Mosier promised to continue the tradition of integrity and the very best service to the taxpayers.

“We believe in the community and the taxpayers,” Bob Mosier said. After many speeches and presentations, the ceremony ended with a big “Thank you” from the Sheriff and his team to the crowd.

“I am sure Sally’s family, friends, and former colleagues will miss her, and I know she will be missed,” Mosier said. “But the true legacy of Sally Wolford is the way we live and the way we work for the community.”
